BRUNO ADMITS LIE ON STAND

-a word in edgewise; wise and otherwise

By I. M. WISE

MENTAL SCALE

A professor, or should I say scientist, at the University of California has invented a mental measurement scale and it does not take much imagination to see where it could be applied to many uses other than the one primarily intended. It is called a medium for guaging the intelligence of children between the ages of 15 and 84 months and the method of applying the system is told in a syllabus written by Dr. Adele S. Jaffa, research associate of California Institute of Child Welfare.

The practical application is too deep for me to understand but I will take Dr. Jaffa's word that it enables the examiner to observe the nature and development of intelligence in the children scored.

OPENS NEW FIELDS

It seems to me that a field of wonderful possibilities is opened up by this discovery, so why limit it to children of tender years? It could be put to practical use in politics. For instance, apply it to our candidates and thus discover whether they are fitted or not for the public jobs to which they aspire. From what I saw at Sacramento during several recent visits, there is a crying necessity for its application to many of those who have been entrusted with the duty of making our laws.

Perhaps with a little more study and experimentation the scheme could be so perfected that parents would be able to tell at a very early age the vocation their offspring would be best fitted for, and instead of lawyers and doctors they would educate them for plumbers and auto mechanics, or vice versa. It would work well, I also surmise in the newspaper business, even though some of us now engaged in that profession might be forced to resort to the shovel and the hoe to make a living.

If intelligence can be measured from 15 to 84 months, why cannot the process be continued, and mentality determined from the cradle to the grave? Of course it might involve many changes of occupation, for if it was determined that the subject showed arrested mental growth, he should be put at something else more suitable to his attainments and brain capacity, such as being a politician.

WE'LL COOPERATE

The subject has a strange fascination for us and we devoutly hope that Dr. Jaffa will persist in his efforts and investigations and give us the benefit of them in language

Law Observance To Be Subject Grand Jury Meet

MARTINEZ, Jan. 29.—The grand jury session to be held here tomorrow, as told in the Record-Herald yesterday morning, will devote its attention to law observance and law enforcement matters within Contra Costa county. Justices of the peace, constables, the district attorney and the sheriff have all been asked to be present.

The meeting was called, it is said, at the behest of the law enforcement committee of the body, the personnel of which is secret, being known only to the foreman who made the appointments and the members of the committee themselves. The remainder of the grand jury is as ignorant of the identity of the committee as the general public.

Alameda Man Is Held On Charges

ALAMEDA, Jan. 29.—Geralamo Pastorino, 39, 1139 Broadway, was arrested on a federal warrant last night charging him with conspiring to manufacture untaxed alcohol in violation of the U. S. Internal Revenue Act.

He was the third man to be taken into custody since federal operatives raided a huge still here last December. The still was situated on property adjoining the residence of Pastorino. The man was lodged in the city jail in lieu of $5,000 bail. He was arrested by Alameda police.

Unusual Plea Is Made By Prosecutor

Unusual circumstances featured the conviction and sentencing of Henry Hightman of Richmond on a statutory offense against a 14-year-old girl in the superior court last night.

ASKS FOR MERCY

In the first place it is unusual for a district attorney to make a plea to the jury for leniency in behalf of the defendant, but that was what District Attorney Francis P. Healey did.

RECOMMENDS JAIL TERM

He not only urged extenuating circumstances in behalf of the youth on trial but went still further and declared that he did not believe the boy should be sent to State prison to have his life spoiled by association with hardened offenders but should be given a very moderate term in the county jail.

Healey in presenting the case to the jury and advocating that justice not only be tempered with mercy, but good sense, said that in his opinion the defendant was not so much to blame, being a victim of circumstances, but the real culprits were his brother and Stella Kirk, who stand accused of the offense of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

JURY IMPRESSED

Apparently the jury was deeply impressed by the district attorney's fair and impartial presentation of the case, and when the verdict was read in court it embodied his recommendations for extreme leniency and a term in the county jail.

WAIVES SENTENCE TIME

Still another unusual feature of the case was the waiving by the defendant of the statutory time that must intervene between date of con-

Robbery Attempt Is Investigated

El Cerrito police last night investigated the breaking of a window of an auto wrecking place owned by John Heldorn at San Pablo avenue and Panhandle Boulevard.

Officer Howard Thulin was summoned to the scene when it was reported that a front window had been broken by some one who had attempted to rob the place. However, Thulin found no evidence of burglary and was led to believe that the window had been broken by some one who smashed into the front of the building with a car.

ROOSEVELT SUFFERS A NEW DEFEAT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—UP—American isolationists won a smashing victory in the Senate tonight when a resolution calling for this nation's adherence to the World Court was defeated by a vote of 52 to 36—seven less than the necessary two-thirds.

Twenty Democrats, 14 Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one Progressive voted against the court. Forty-three Democrats and nine Republicans voted "aye."

ACCEPT DEFEAT

Majority Leader Joe T. Robinson, who has directed the administration's fight during the three weeks of bitter debate on the measure, accepted defeat gracefully.

The vote, he said, "foreclosed the question from further consideration at least for an indefinite period."

JOHNSON PLEASED

Senator Hiram W. Johnson, Republican, California, vigorous foe of the court who fought the project every inch of the way said:

"I am delighted. Not a man we counted on went back on us."

The Administration lost its fight in the closing hours of debate, although Robinson said tonight he never had counted on but a one vote victory. Even a last minute concession by the majority leader—a concession approved by the White House—failed to save the resolution.

FINAL THRUST

Party lines began to crack when Senator George W. Norris, silver plumed Republican of Nebraska who has supported Roosevelt on all New Deal legislation, arose to deliver a final thrust.

He warned that the resolution "did not have sufficient safeguards to keep this nation out of trouble." He spoke as a father would to a headstrong son who leaped before he looked.

BEARS FRUIT

Norris' arguments bore fruit. Senator William J. Bulow, Democrat, South Carolina, upon whose vote the Administration had depended, announced he would vote against the resolution. Opponents

LAST RITES HELD

Funeral services were held from the Wilson and Kratzer chapel yesterday for the late George Karamanos, 67, former Southern Pacific employee who died last Thursday. Interment was in Sunset View cemetery.

'I Mean Business'

SO SAID Fay Webb Vallee as she boarded a train for New York, to her father, Chief of Police Clarence E. Webb, of Santa Monica. "There's no if about this. I'm going to break that contract." She referred to a contract between herself and her estranged husband, Rudy Vallee, crooning star of radio, providing her with $100 a week separate maintenance.

RFC Plan Will Be Continued For Two Years

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—UP—The House tonight passed a bill extending the life of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for two years and liberalizing a number of the loan features of the RFC act.

There was no opposition.

A similar proposal has been passed by the Senate but because a number of changes were made by the House banking and currency committee, the bill must go back to the upper chamber for final action.

Rapid action is necessary because the previous act under which the RFC was created expires February 1.

The House bill differed from the Senate proposal in that it provided for:

Loans to closed banks secured by the assets of corporations wholly owned by the banks.

Loans to finance companies or other credit institutions financing the sale of electrical, plumbing or air conditioning equipment.

Loans of not more than $10,000 to owners of small mining properties for development work.

An amendment by Representative Jasem Schrughan, Democrat, Nevada, adopted late today authorized the RFC to make loans to mine operators for development work.

Birthday Ball Will Be Held Here Tonight

Final preparations have been made and everything is in readiness for the second annual President's Birthday Ball which will be held this evening at the Memorial hall.

Sponsored by many Richmond organizations, the affair is expected to attract a tremendous crowd.

All money derived from the affair will be divided, 30 percent to be sent to the national infantile paralysis work and the remaining 70 percent for local work, E. L. Orr, chairman of local arrangements, announced last night that a meeting will be held in February at which time a decision will be reached, agreeable to all, as to where and how the 70 percent for local work will be used.

Tonight's dance will not only be a community affair but will also be for residents of San Pablo and El Cerrito. At Rodeo a second dance will be held this evening for residents of that area.

The ball is receiving the support of hundreds of local citizens, and civic leaders.

Teddy Roosevelt Is Grandfather

BALTIMORE, Jan. 29.—Col Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, became a grandfather today, and it was hard to tell who was the more excited and happy—he or the proud father.

A 7 pound 1 3-4 ounce boy was born to Grace Roosevelt McMillan, the colonel's daughter, and McMillan, who were married last March. The blessed event occurred at 7:30 P. M. and an hour and a half later Colonel and Mrs. Roosevelt had arrived by airplane from Oyster Bay, N. Y.

STANFORD U. PROFESSOR FOUND DEAD

SARATOGA, Jan. 29.—(UP)—The body of Professor Buford O. Brown, Stanford university instructor in journalism, was found in his parked automobile near here today.

Police said that circumstances surrounding the discovery indicated suicide. Death apparently had been caused by carbon monoxide gas conducted into the car by a tube from the machine's exhaust pipe.

KNEW LAMSON

Professor Brown declared that he had known Lamson approximately eight years, and that Lamson's manner toward his attractive brunette wife was "very courteous, very genteel."

A note found in the automobile, and opened by Deputy Coroner Louis Provenzano, blamed financial worries and ill health for the suicide, officers said.

BODY FOUND

The body was found by a San Jose Water Company meter reader, Jerome McDonald, who saw Brown's automobile parked on a bridge on Pender Road, about four miles northwest of Saratoga. Brown had been missing since 2:30 p. m. Monday, according to a report by Stanford university officials.

Professor Brown, 51, a recognized journalistic authority, made a will last Wednesday, leaving his entire estate to his wife, Mrs. Hallie Workman Brown, and making provision for funeral expenses and payment of doctors' bills. He told his wife that he was going to Mountain View, nearby town, when he left his home Monday.

Surviving Brown are his wife, a daughter at Texas Women's College and a son and daughter in Palo Alto high school.

New Indictments Presented In Nelson Probe

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—UP—New indictments today were returned against 17 persons charged with conspiring to harbor the late George "Baby Face" Nelson.

The indictments replaced the original charges against the 17, all but one of whom now are detained in California or Nevada. They also named Vincent Markovich, San Francisco. Markovich was taken into custody late today.

Voted last night by a federal grand jury, the indictments included more specific details concerning the charges pending against Nelson at the time the defendants assertedly conspired to shield him than did the original indictments.

Gasoline Probe Bill Is Beaten

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 29.—(UP)—The Washington House of Representatives today rejected Governor Clarence Martin's resolution demanding investigation of the so-called gasoline monopoly. The vote of 63 to 33 was the first administration set-back at this legislative session.

Left-wingers who joined anti-administration forces in indefintely postponing action on the resolution said they feared passage would have blocked their bill to put the state in the gasoline wholesaling business.

Deaths of 30 Declared Due To Drinking Poison Rum

UTICA, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Thirty persons lay dead tonight in the nation's worst poison liquor tragedy since repeal of the 18th amendment.

Public opinion in New York state—one of the first during prohibition to demand legal liquor—clamored for stern investigation and prosecution. The legislature at Albany will receive a bill tomorrow calling for a searching probe of the "poison liquor situation."

SEEK POISON

Federal and state officials collaborated in an effort to trace source of the poison which began striking down men and women here and at Gloversville last Thursday. Police arrested nine persons as suspected sellers. One died from his own liquor.

Utica police tonight announced arrests of a man they believed the "Archie" whom a dying woman said sold her liquor.

NAMES ARCHIE

Before Miss Mabel Rose died yesterday police asked her where she bought her liquor.

"From Archie," she murmured, then died.

This afternoon police arrested John Archbeacon and charged him with selling liquor without a license. The liquor has resulted in 16 deaths here. Three others are expected to live. Two others were stricken blind.

22 CASES REPORTED

Gloversville counted 14 dead, including four women. Several other cases were reported critical.

Of more than 22 cases reported at Nathan Littaure hospital, Gloversville, six persons died today. Eight succumbed last night.

Suggested by Scout officials, and backed by W. H. Dayton, manager of the local Penney store, the contest will provide much rivalry among the various Scout troops of the city.

The troop which is rated the most efficient will receive a sum of $50 which will be used to pay the expenses of one of its members to the national jamboree which will be held in Washington in the near future.

Troops will be rated on their attendance, attendance in uniform, rate of advancement of members, attendance at over-night hikes, courts of honor, and the adoption of new recruits.

The campaign will be in progress for a period of six weeks.

Mexico Rounds Up More Conspirators

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 29.—UP—Authorities rounded up more than a score of alleged conspirators accused of revolutionary activities tonight.

Charged with plotting against the government of President Cardenas, those held were allegedly connected with the ring exposed yesterday with the arrest of a Pullman conductor, said to have been the go-between linking the conspirators here with exiles in Texas.

Police said the plotters planned a revolution headed by the exiled leaders in conjunction with local oppositions with the hopes that a portion of the army would be won over to the rebel side.

HAUPTMANN STORY AGAIN HIT BY STATE

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 29.—UP—Isidor Fisch spoke from the grave today and told a tale that trapped and tangled Bruno Richard Hauptmann into admitting that he had spent the last three years passing from one shabby lie to another.

They raked up from everywhere all there was to know about Isidor Fisch. Where and how he lived; how much money he had; when and where he died; and what he and Hauptmann did in the years when they set out to try to earn 20 per cent return on a fur business and beat the stock market with their profits.

ASKED TO EXPLAIN

Then Attorney General David T. Wilentz laid this tightly knit narrative in Hauptmann's ear and asked him to explain a score of contradictions in his testimony. Hauptmann lifted his hands helplessly and muttered.

"I don't know what I said."

Fisch might as well have been a witness himself today, for the story that they built around him pictured him, not as a man swaggering through life with $50,000 ransom, but as one beaten by fate, doomed by his poverty to live in a frowsy hall bedroom and finally to die in poverty with his lungs ruined by tuberculosis.

BRUNO TELLS STORY

It was letters that Bruno sent to Fisch's relatives in Germany that filled the gaps.

If Bruno Richard Hauptmann escapes the electric chair for his crime, he leaves Fisch's memory blackened by suspicion. For he explains the ransom money found in his pocketbook and in his home by saying that Fisch gave it to him. So just before ending his two day cross examination of Hauptmann, Wilentz set out to try to show the jury what kind of a man Isidor Fisch really was.

Western Mine Owners Aided By New Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—UP—Representative James Scrugham, Democrat, Nevada, won a victory for Western mine operators today when his bill authorizing the RFC to make loans for development work was adopted by the House as an amendment to the RFC extension bill.

It was adopted virtually in the form introduced by the Nevada Democrat.

The amendment provides that mine owners may borrow up to $20,000 for developing lodes, veins, ledges or placer deposits.

"Passage of this amendment is a boon to the owner of the small gold or silver property in the West," Scrugham said. "Private capital is not inclined to invest in such development work and consequently a great deal of ore which has been found is still under ground."

OAKMONT GOLF PLAY WILL BE OPENED TODAY

GLENDALE, Jan. 29.—Those veteran fairway fortune seekers, rudely shunted into the background by a bunch of youngsters, had their eyes on the richest stake of the California winter golf season today—the Oakmont $6500 Open and Nassau event, starting here tomorrow.

Winners of only one event in six, the old guard will seek in 72 holes of medal play and four rounds of match competition which will be concluded Tuesday to catch up with Harold McSpaden, Vic Ghezzi, John Revolta and the rest.

McSpaden set the pace going into this golfing innovation, with the Pasadena, Sacramento and San Francisco tournament titles in his possession, along with nearly three thousand dollars in prize money. Ghezzi was victor in the Los Angeles open, while Horton Smith of the veterans was the closest competitor because of his California open triumph.

STARTS TODAY

Half the field of more than 200 players will go to the first tee tomorrow, with the remainder playing its first round Thursday. The low seventy and ties will continue in the second round Friday with 100 professionals and twenty amateurs continuing through the last 36 holes.

Four thousand dollars in prize money will be distributed to the thirty leaders at the end of 72 holes play, with the nine leading pros and as many amateurs competing Monday and Tuesday in Nassau championships of four rounds.

Under this system each player will meet the eight others on a match play basis with the one collecting the most points among the pay-for-play gentry getting the championship along with the major share of $2,500 additional money. It is possible, under this plan, for the champion to collect as much as $1,500 for the tournament.

POINT SYSTEM

Under the Nassau scoring system, a player collects points for low score at the end of each nine holes as well as the eighteen hole total for each match. Should he win each side and each total of every match he could amass a perfect score of 48, on the basis of two points for every nine and eighteen holes.

The amateurs, competing in their own Nassau championship, will play for prizes.

Included in the field teeing off tomorrow will be McSpaden, Jimmy Thompson, Australia open champion; Gene Sarazen, former national open title holder; Ghezzi, Revolta, runner up to Ghezzi in the Los Angeles open; Harry Cooper, finalist in the San Francisco match play tournament; Wiffy Cox, Agua Caliente champion; Craig Wood, leading money winner of the winter tournaments here two years ago, and others.

SECOND RACE TRACK IN L. A. IS PLANNED

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—(UP)—John W. Marchbank, owner of the Tanforan course near San Mateo, today announced that he had filed application with the State Horse Racing board for permission to build a racing plant near Los Angeles.

Marchbank's announcement said he had taken the action at the request of a group of Southern California sportsmen and breeders. His application for a permit was accompanied by a $10,000 check, sent to W. C. Buchanan, secretary of the board.

"As soon as the permit is granted, which I anticipate will not take long, preliminary steps will be put forward for the building of the plant," Marchbank said.

The inaugural meeting for the proposed track would be held next fall. Marchbank said he had four or five possible sites for the track under consideration, and that all were within 30 minutes of downtown Los Angeles.

Plans for a second track in the southland have been reported from numerous sources following the profitable showing now being made at the Santa Anita track. Two tracks, Bay Meadows and Tanforan, the former opened this winter, operate near San Francisco.

Speaking of Sports

LONDON, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Two American-owned racehorses—J. H. "Jock" Whitney's Thomond II, and J. B. Snow's Delaneige—are causing the Grand National Steeplechase officials a severe headache.

There are 60 horses entered for the world's chief jumping race, to be run at Liverpool, March 29, and although it will be easy to place most of them, Thomond II and Delaneige on their showing last year are "horses of a different color."

Golden Miller won last year carrying 170 pounds. Delaneige, carrying 160 pounds, was second, five lengths behind, and Thomond II, 172 pounds, was third, another five lengths away.

Thomond's jockey was certain he would have won if his mount had not been brought to his knees by other horses. Delaneige, too, had a rare tussle with Golden Miller on the flat.

Both these horses, as well as Golden Miller, have improved during the past year, but the dopesters think that 175 pounds will be too much for Golden Miller to carry around the four and a half miles circuit, while Thomond II and Delaneige, with probably as much as six pounds less each, look like good things.

One interesting point about the race is that under recent rules five-year-olds are barred.

Only six-year-olds and upwards are eligible. At the time of entry they must have been placed in the first three in a steeplechase of three miles or upwards worth approximately $1,000 to the winner; or in a steeplechase of any distance at Aintree, the National course; or have won any steeplechase worth $2,500 to the winner.

Actually there are only two six-year-olds entered — the American Jesse Metcalf's Kiltoi, and Mrs. B. Mundy's Avenger.

Twenty Grand May Withdraw From Handicap

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 29.—UP—Withdrawal of Twenty Grand, Kentucky Derby record holder, as a starter in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap February 23, appeared a virtual certainty today.

The 7 year old campaigner's trainer, Bill Brennan, said his withdrawal was conditional on consent of his owner, Mrs. Payne Whitney. Brennan recommended the action in a letter to Major Louis A. Beard, manager of the Whitney racing stables.

Brennan said he believed Twenty Grand had passed his peak. Last Friday, he ran third in a four-horse field in a special race at Santa Anita Park and pulled up lame. A leg ligament, strained a year ago, was still troubling him.

"He isn't running free," Brennan said. "It wasn't the race that was disappointing, he ran well. But you could see something was bothering him."

Idle since the close of the 1932 season, Twenty Grand was one of the first great thoroughbreds nominated for the Santa Anita classic. He undertook his first test last Friday after six previous scheduled starts were cancelled. His delayed "comeback" discouraged bettors from favoring him heavily in the future books but he remains about a 20 to 1 shot, according to last published quotations.

Cavalcade, whose 8 to 5 odds in the Agua Caliente future book, make him a virtually prohibitive favorite, turned in a near brilliant workout yesterday when he spun the mile in 1:37 1-3. The 1934 champion, despite his fast time, was still under wraps.

Yesterday's feature was won by Semaphore, who paid $11.60 straight. Bonny Grafton placed and Moonson finished third.

Longest shot to wind up in the winner's circle was Salaam. Win bettors collected $28.20.

Newkirk Signs To Pitch For The S. F. Seals

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Floyd Newkirk, the "three-fingered Jack" of baseball, today signed to pitch for the San Francisco Seals during the coming season.

Since an accident in a middle-western steel mill, in which he lost the third and fourth finger of his right hand, Newkirk has pitched with the use of only his thumb and two first fingers.

Loss of the digits apparently has not hampered Newkirk's pitching, as he lost but four while winning 11 games for Newark in the International League last season. Late in the season he was recalled by the New York Yankees.

County Hospital Is Over-Crowded

MARTINEZ, Jan. 29.—Because of overcrowded conditions at the county hospital and the infrequent use of the detention home for juveniles, the detention home is being used now to house ten elderly women inmates of the county hospital.

By use of the detention home, it is believed the county can escape for a time the building of additional facilities at the hospital to care for inmates.

Use of the building for women does not preclude proper housing for juveniles.

Attendants are being provided for both the women inmates and juveniles.

County Parole Board Splits At First Meeting

MARTINEZ, Jan. 29. Holding their first meeting, members of the Contra Costa parole board, composed of Sheriff John A. Miller, District Attorney Francis Healey and Chief of Police Charles Palmer, had recorded today their initial split on a parole application. Sheriff Miller casting a lone negative vote on an application of Emeterio Martinez, jailed January 23 for 30 days on a drunkenness charge.

The favorable votes of Healy and Palmer, however, gained Martinez, a Tunnel Road district ranch hand, his freedom after the board had determined that paroles would be granted upon a two-thirds vote. Martinez was sentenced from Richmond.

At the board's meeting yesterday afternoon it was determined that a rigid system of voting would be maintained with Miller voting first, Healy second and Palmer third.

The board considered informally the status of Ben Hendry, 20 of Pittsburg, given a sentence of almost two years on a drunkenness charge on a conjunctive sentence such as Superior Judge Thomas D. Johnston held last week to be invalid in freeing Vecalle Black of Richmond on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Henry was sentenced to six months plus a fine of $500 with the court ruling he would have to serve one day for each $1 of the fine remaining unpaid. Hendry will be eligible to make application for parole when half of the six months' term has been served. He was sentenced November 28.

STATE SCORES IN TRIAL FOR ARMY OFFICER

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 29 — UP — Army doctors who attended Mrs. Zenana Shepard in her fatal illness in 1929 testified today in Major Charles A. Shepard's second trial on charges of murdering her by poisoning.

The elderly officer, now retired, was convicted in 1930 and sentenced to life imprisonment. The United States Supreme Court reversed the case.

His third wife, the former Mrs. Alice Watt of Denver, sat with Shepard in court.

DIED OF POISON

Major Paul R. Hawley testified that Mrs. Shepard died of mercurial poisoning. She appeared in good health until her fatal illness, he said. He added that he never saw her intoxicated.

The defense contends that she was an alcoholic, and took an excess of mercury in a mouth wash by accident. The government charges that Major Shepard gave her poison in whisky, so that he would be free to marry Miss Grace Brandon, blond Army stenographer he courted in San Antonio, Tex.

GAVE GIFTS

Evidence at the first trial disclosed that the officer, 36 years older than Miss Brandon, lavished gifts on the stenographer and proposed marriage to her a few weeks after his wife died.

Major Hawley said that Mrs. Shepard's illness baffled him and that suggestions that civilian physicians be consulted were ignored by Major Shepard.

Major M. F. Dufreune, surgery specialist who signed Mrs. Shepard's death certificate, followed Major Hawley. The certificate gave the cause of death as "gastro enteritis, acute, severe" with the added notation "cause undetermined".

AUTOPSY HELD

Major Dufreune said that Major Shepard, throughout his wife's illness, seemed worried over her condition and that he had no reason to doubt the husband's sincerity.

An autopsy performed on Mrs. Shepard over Major Shepard's objections revealed traces of mercury poisoning. The officer said his wife had a horror of a post mortem operation, and asked that none be permitted.

'FIXER' NAMED IN HEARING ON SHIP BUILDING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 —UP — The shadowy figures of a "fixer" described as "the most influential civilian in Washington," who said that for $250,000 he could obtain 10 or 15 million dollars worth of naval construction contracts, took form today at the senate munitions inquiry.

His name was not mentionad. Apparently the witness who told about him did not know it. But the same unidentified individual drafted the shipbuilders and ship repairer code and prepared all bids for shipbuilders on naval vessels allocated under the NIRA, according to William Calvin, secretary-treasurer of the metal trade department of the American Federation of Labor.

TELLS STORY

Calvin said he was present at a conference in August, 1933, when L. R. Wilder, board chairman of Gulf Industries, Inc., was told that for a quarter of a million dollars the "fixer" could get him $10,000,000 or $15,000,000 of naval construction, provided his yard could handle it.

The man who made the offer, Calvin testified, was "Mr. Gravem, a Washington attorney." Alex B. Gravem, local attorney, told the United Press he had talked with Wilder for about 10 minutes in 1933, and that Colvin's story was "absolutely untrue," and that he would prove it before the munitions committee tomorrow.

Calvin's testimony followed that of Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Navy construction chief, who denied that the Navy is "at the mercy" of private shipbuilders. He said the only way the Navy could undertake its own design work would be "by a great augmentation of our staff."

STUDIES BILL

Meanwhile the House Military Affairs committee, studying a bill designed to take the profits out of war, heard W. C. Husing, legislative representative of the American Federation of Labor, charge that the presence of alien Japanese and 9,000 alien negroes in the Panama Canal Zone made it the weakest spot in American defenses.

"It seems to us," said Husing, "that the judicious expenditure of a little money could cause a lot of trouble on the canal. We believe that Americans should be employed exclusively on the waterway. Every new ship that goes through the canal leaves a new Japanese barber ship in Panama City."

George K. Probeck, legislative representative of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, urged non-profit conscription of capital and industry in event of future war.

Jap Troops In New Drives On Chinese Towns

SHANGHAI (Wednesday) Jan. 30.—(UP)—Japanese troops are continuing their advance in Chahar Province, according to Chinese press reports received here today.

Japanese planes have flown over Kuyuan and Tushihkou, dropping pamphlets announcing that the Japanese army forces plan to continue their westward advance, it was claimed.

It also was reported that the villages of Chiaochiaweitze and Yihochen, in Chahar Province east of Kuyuan, have been taken by the Japanese.

Reports of the continued advance contradicted official advices that Japanese troops had halted their pursuit of Chinese forces, with the latter encamped behind the Great Wall of China and the Japanese occupying a position to the east, and claimed by them to be within the boundaries of Manchukuo and Jehol Province.

GOES EPIC?

Last October when Upton Sinclair intimated the President was in agreement with his "production for use" idea, only confirmed believers took his word for it. But actions speak louder than words and "P. F. U." which is "EPIC" in any man's language, is not in disrepute among the "reliefers" at the Nation's capital. So far there is nothing to distinguish the national chart of this year from the planned economy of [illegible]. If the FERA dairy farms set up in Los Angeles county are a criterion, business need fear no competition. The stock of milk cows sent in by the government turned out to be steers. That was just one instance—citing others would be useless repetition. But speaking of P.F.U. according to Upton Sinclair's Epic News profits are desirable—in fact, as necessary as in private business. He quotes as authority the pamphlet "Organization and Management of Cooperative Associations," issued by the Department of Labor, which ends the argument since we are now agreed on the necessity of profits. . . . In Russia, so says an AP dispatch, a farmer was executed recently for being lazy. He failed to weed a cotton crop and was charged with using too much fertilizer at a cooperative farm. A liberal education awaits P.F.U. enthusiasts not having read "The Land Without Unemployment." This is published as "being a choice of 5,000 pictures" by Ogonjok, Moscow, by authority of U.S.S.R. Especially interesting will be certain of these pages to women.

Man Is Killed In Robbery Of Store In S .F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—The attempt of two friends of a grocery store proprietress to prevent her from being robbed resulted in the death of one of them last night and in severe injuries to the other.

The dead man is Morris Weisblatt, 27, of 1015 Golden Gate avenue. With Charles Wilkinson, 27, of 723 Miami street, he was chatting with Mrs. Rose Lazarus in her grocery store at 1011 Laguna street last night, when two men entered and ordered several bottles of beer.

When the men started to walk out without paying, Weisblatt and Wilkinson seized them. The two men, using the beer bottles as clubs, beat Weisblatt and Wilkinson, rendering both unconscious, then fled.

Both men were taken to the Central Emergency hospital suffering from fractured skulls. Weisblatt died there a few hours later. Wilkinson was said today to be in a serious condition.

Mrs. Lazarus said both their attackers had been in her store before to make purchases, but said she didn't know their names. She gave a description of each to the police.

RED PLOT IN ARMY, NAVY IS TOLD AT TRIAL

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—UP—Testimony linking the Communist party with subversive activities in the United States navy and army was introduced today in trial of 17 alleged Communists on charges of criminal syndicalism.

A Communist school in Sacramento had "agents in the army and navy, and those two organizations were ready to turn to the Communist standard at call," Robert N. Hicks, a lieutenant in the reserve corps, testified.

Hicks also identified Jack Crane one of the 17 defendants, as a teacher in the school. He quoted Crane as saying that the Communist party "is definitely going to set up a Soviet form of government in the United States," and advocating use of armed force if required to effect this end.

William L. Harr, also a reserve officer, testified that he became a "student" in the school to observe activities of its leaders. Harr said the principal teachings involved charges that "labor was a slave to the machine age," and that "capital" should be overthrown.

Sister Murderer Gets Stay; Will Ask New Hearing

FOLSOM PRISON, Jan. 29.—UP Harold P. Bieber, who asked a judge to hang him for the fatal stabbing of his sister, has recanted his demand and is prepared to request a stay of execution, Warden Court Smith indicated today.

Bieber is scheduled to hang Friday. When tried for the slaying of his sister, Mrs. Lena Blair, he asked the trial judge to show no leniency, but to impose the death penalty following his plea of guilty. Recently he wrote Governor Frank Merriam insisting that he wanted no reprieves or executive clemency.

Two sisters visited him last week end, however, and apparently succeeded in persuading him to seek a stay of execution and possibly to apply later for commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment, Warden Smith said.

Barley Men Of State To Face Huge Surpluses

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—UP—Barley growers of California face a surplus of from 50,000 to 100,000 tons, accompanied by record low prices, unless local crops are purchased for federal drought relief and import duties restored on Canadian grain, the State chamber of commerce said today.

The Chamber's announcement followed an appeal to California Senators and Congressmen in Washington to secure federal recognition of present conditions in California.

With rainfall well above normal, present conditions point to an unusually heavy crop this spring. Subnormal production in 1934, due to adverse weather conditions, materially reduced the surplus and restored prices to a fair level, but another large surplus will accumulate during the coming season unless federal steps to prevent it are taken, the report said.

Right in price.... in operating cost!

Have you a heating problem that is different? Perhaps you don't want to make a large investment because the house is old. Or you may have a big house and you don't want to make the basement look and sound like a boiler room. Perhaps you have a small or medium sized house and like heating equipment that will be out of the way, cause no bother to install or operate, and will provide heat at a moderate cost. Then check down through these seven examples of satisfactory installations of gas heating.

"Say, this is great . . . just feel that flow of lively heat." It's a floor furnace—the ideal solution for furnace heat in homes without a basement. Inexpensive to buy—for example, floor furnaces can be purchased for as little as . . . . $45 plus installation

"Here's the luxury of steam heat for modest homes with modest incomes." A gas steam radiator takes up but little space by a wall. Low in operating cost, and low in first cost. As little as . . . . $31.50 plus installation

"Cheerful fireside glow with warmth as clean as sunshine." One of the most companionable types of gas heating equipment. Very good to look at, and very, very modest in cost. Radiantfire as low as . . . . $16 plus installation

"Just the finest heating for the California home." A gas designed warm-air furnace that operates by automatic thermostat. Quiet, clean, efficient, and a joy to own. Now as low as . . . . $90 plus installation

"Good looking and very satisfactory"—is what thousands say about the Circulating Heater. Can be used to heat from two to four rooms. Medium size for the average single floor home. As low as . . . . $56 plus installation

"An old-fashioned furnace too good to discard but bothersome to operate"—is made into an automatic gas-fired furnace by means of the efficient conversion burner. With three button electric control you are able to run the furnace from your easy chair. Yours for $1 a month—total price as low as $65

"For refinement and the most your money can buy"—It is hard to beat the gas-fired steam boiler. Made for every type of dwelling, small or large, apartment or flat. A wide range of models from . . . . $180 and up—plus installation

* * *

You can borrow the money you need for gas heating equipment at low interest rates through the Federal Housing Administration. It's a wise investment to make.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.— The revolt against Roosevelt's work-relief bill disclosed a behind-the-scenes rebellion among supposedly loyal Democrats which has Administration leaders worried.

They won't admit it but they are. And they have good reason to be.

The session is less than a month old. The measure was only the opening gun of the President's legislative program.

Yet on this first—and what was considered easy test, the fires of insurgency flared so fiercely that the House leadership saved its face only by making material concessions.

The White House always expected trouble in the Senate.

But the House, gagged and curbed, was to be the trump card up its sleeve.

In this chamber, according to inner council strategy, the Administration would put through legislation in the form it desired, then hold the House as a bargaining club over the Senate.

But with the House kicking over the traces on the first showdown the efficacy of this set-up becomes extremely uncertain.

It is true that on the major issue—the President's demand that no strings be attached to the $4,880,000,000 appropriation—the Administration was able to hold its line.

But it did so only after resort to everything but the use of "brass knucks."

The President had to abandon the much-desired provision empowering him to extend the life of emergency recovery agencies another two years. Also he had to give personal assurance that he alone would determine the allocation of the $4,800,000,000 fund.

Two things stand out in the relief bill upheaval.

First, and as repeatedly predicted in this column—Old Guard Democrats and not liberals are the most serious legislative foes the President has to reckon with.

Second, Speaker Joe Byrns is unable to hold his Old Guard lieutenants in line.

He started a campaign of discipline when he withdrew his promise to Henry Ellenbogen of a place on the Rules Committee after the forthright Pittsburgher had refused to vote for a gag rule.

But he was impotent when three hand-picked Old Guarders on the Rules Committee—Dies of Texas, Smith of Virginia, and Cox of Georgia—started the rumpus on the relief measure.

FARLEY BOY

Few diplomatic appointments recently have caused as much concern as that of Antonio Gonzalez, American Minister to Panama.

He was a Farley appointee, and soon after he was appointed, the State Department began to wish Farley had never seen him. In fact, Gonzalez was the one thing about Panama on which the State and War Department agreed.

Both wanted him out. The State Department even hinted to some of Secretary Dern's army officers that they should take the lead in asking for his removal.

But Jim Farley was adamant.

"Gonzalez delivered the Puerto Rican vote for us in New York City," proclaimed Jim, "and we're going to take care of him. You can find him another job if you want to, but you cant fire him."

So that was what the State Department did.

They found Gonzalez another job—that of Minister to distant Ecuador. But, in order to do it, they had to transfer the Minister to Ecuador to Colombia, the Minister to Venezuela to Panama and the Minister to Paraguay to Venezuela all to take care of Jim Farley's vote-getter.

SHHHH!

Waiting reporters, Senatorial secretaries, clerks and stenographers suddenly were bustled out of the Senate Banking Committee.

No explanation was given for the forced exodus.

When the room was cleared the transom over the outer door was even slammed shut. Obviously a very important confab was about to take place.

Newsmen waited impatiently. Finally, the door was opened and the secretary of the committee emerged. The reporters made a rush for him.

"What's up?" they demanded.

CONGRESS ROOKIE

Joseph L. Pfeifer, Brooklyn's new Democratic Congressman, is not interested in NRA, AAA, PWA—but in abscesses, gangrene, and peritonitis.

Few doctors come to Congress. Pfeifer is probably the busiest. His chief pride is that the mortality rate in operations for acute appendicitis performed at St. Catherine's in Brooklyn is, he says, one-fifth that at other New York City hospitals.

Pfeifer's parents were German immigrants 55 years ago and his accent is Bushwick, a cross of Brooklyn and German.

"Glad to have you with us, Doc. I see you're barefooted on top."

Pfeifer is forty-two and bald as a billiard ball.

He commutes to his practice in Brooklyn, will oppose legislation providing for dissemination of birth control information, save in cases of physical or mental deficiency.

BING CROSBY TO BE STARRED IN FILM HERE

Bing Crosby, starring with Kitty Carlisle in "Here Is My Heart," plus Adolphe Menjou and Doris Kenyon in "The Human Side," are the two pictures opening at the Fox theatre today.

A delightful and frivolous comedy, with romance, "Here Is My Heart" also offers the first of the 1935 song hits. Those who remember the duet of Crosby and Miss Carlisle singing "Love in Bloom" from "She Loves Me Not," have a treat in store for them when they hear these voices sing "It's June in January." Crosby also sings "Love Is Just Around the Corner" and "With Every Breath I Take."

"Here Is My Heart" is the story of a crooner who is also a collector of old pistols. He has one, a mate to another owned by a Russian princess (Kitty Carlisle). There begins the romance. Bing's effort to obtain the pistol finally results in his obtaining the princess also.

The screen's most famous man about-town goes completely domestic when Adolphe Menjou take complete and absolute charge of his domestic affairs in "The Human Side," his first starring picture since his triumph with Shirley Temple in "Little Miss Marker."

The picture exhibits the debonair Menjou as a gas theatrical producer, always in debt, always broke and always in love with some other woman. Menjou has quite some time in staying away from Mazda Lane once tempted, but usually his escapades are forgiven and forgotten by friend wife until his better half gives him a dose of his own medicine.

Doris Kenyon, Charlotte Henry, Reginald Owen, little Dickie Moore and Betty Lawford are in the supporting cast.

Congress Will Get Townsend Bill Very Soon

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Dr. F. E. Townsend will appear before the House Ways and Means committee Friday to urge substitution of his $20,000,000,000 old age pension plan for the administration's plan.

Decision to allow Townsend to appear at security bill hearings came as Representative John Hoeppel (D., Cal.), carried the fight for the Townsend program to the floor of the House today. Hoeppel defended the $200 a month pension proposal for all over 60 as economically sound.

"I realize of course that I am subject to ridicule by some for bringing this subject up," Hoeppel told the House, "but I remind you that they called Robert Fulton's steamboat 'Fulton folly' and the same sort of people today are laughing at the Townsend plan.

"This program may even reduce taxation in the nation. It will not affect the profit motive in industry but it will certainly rid the nation of special privileges."

Hoeppel was bantered by questioners.

"It's a gold brick," shouted Rep. Thomas Blanton, (D., Texas).

CHINESE SENTENCED

NEW YORK INSIDE OUT

By DON O'MALLEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The cops on duty in the police information booth off Times Square have to know a lot to keep their jobs, but you'd hardly expect them to be dramatic critics as well.

It's bad enough that they are confounded by such queries as how many bulbs there are in the cigarette sign, how far the distance is between Broadway and the peak of the Chrysler building, or what the population is of Jackson Heights, without having to know all about the current attractions on Manhattan Midway. But playgoers in need of sound advice continue stepping up to the booth, and the blue-coated boys have turned into theatrical Merlins giving comfort and wisdom on the arts between blasts on their traffic whistles.

We overheard one of them counseling a babe in the woods the other evening. The best musical? Without hesitating an instant, Commissioner Valentine's man on detail shot back, "Anything Goes." Best drama. With the same speed, the polite copper recommended "Point Valaine." He's seen neithr of those shows himself, he admitted, but he reads the papers and gets around.

Bus to Hoboken? Two blocks south and turn right.

KILLING TWO BIRDS

There is a grocery store on upper Broadway which has been picketed for nearly a year, with the result that the strikers have become personally acquainted with most of the customers, and their relations have become quite friendly.

The other day a woman arrived at the store with a perambulator.

"Hello, Fred," she said to one of the two pickets, upon whose back and front were worn placards announcing a strike. "Take care of the baby, will you, while I do my shopping."

Fred did not attempt to persuade the woman not to patronize the "unfair shop." Instead, he obediently began wheeling the baby back and forth in double service to the union and to the customer.

The pickets also serve as depositories for community messages.

"If you see Mrs. Smith," a woman said to one of them, "tell her I've gone down town and won't be back until 3 o'clock.

There is a growing suspicion in the neighborhood, in fact, that the pickets are being subsidized by the grocer himself.

IN THE NAME OF THE LAW

A woman who lives out in Glen Ridge was driving to that borough from New York one afternoon last week, and as is her custom, drove through the Holland Tunnel. The fee is half a dollar for a passenger vehicle, and she planked down a couple of quarters and went on through the tunnel.

At the Jersey end of the tunnel, she was stopped by a man who, through his large flat feet, blue uniform and silver badge, was easily recognizable as a policeman. He strolled out of a little booth, placed one of his feet on the running board, and leaned forward importantly.

"Lady," he said, "one of them quarters you gave in was phoney. The feller at the other end telephoned ahead."

"Phoney," she said.

"Yeah. Counterfeit."

There was no good answer to that except to give him another quarter. The woman was preparing to do this when the telephone in the little booth rang. The officer went back, answered it, talked briefly, and then returned to the car, his frowns gone.

"It's okay," he announced. "You can go. He just phoned that he passed it on somebody else."

The quickest closing for a play thus far this season occurred with "Battleship Gertie," which folded up last week after a run of just two performances.

The producer is now convinced that the war is over.

Castle of Doom

Mildred Snow Gleason

© 1934 by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Patricia Burke arrives in the Italian village of Marvello to seek the job of governess for the Countess Dei Sari's little boy. She meets Dirk Waters, who tells her that Count Dei Sari and his son by a previous marriage, Sergio, are up to some "dirty work." He asks her to help him investigate. When the Count engages her as governess, he forbids her to see Dirk again, but she and Dirk arrange to meet secretly. The Count, meanwhile, has told her that the Countess is mentally unbalanced, and she finds the atmosphere at the Dei Sari castle very "queer." When she tries, one day, to leave the castle grounds to leave a note for Dirk in an arranged place, she is blocked by a locked gate.

CHAPTER XXV

THE locked gate was something Pat had not foreseen. Terribly discouraged by this unexpected failure, she returned to Peter, but instead of playing with him as she had done yesterday, she sat down on the stump of an old tree and tried to figure out what she should do. The front gate was out of the question. Not only would it take her at least three-quarters of an hour to go and come that way, but it was visible from the house.

There seemed to be only one solution: find the key. And that was easier said than done. She didn't have the faintest idea where the house keys were kept, and there was no chance of pumping either the Count or Sergio.

As soon as she was back in her room, she burned her note to Dirk, afraid of being caught with incriminating evidence. She smiled to herself at this precaution, but the Count suspected her—she was certain of that. He had a way of looking at her that made her very nervous, and she had a sudden feeling that he would stop at nothing to achieve this ends. It was much wiser that she have nothing in her possession which could confirm his suspicions. When she discovered a way of communicating with Dirk, there would be time enough to write another message.

AT DINNER that night, she felt more uncomfortable than usual. It seemed to her that the Count never took his eyes off her during the entire meal and, when he spoke, which was seldom, there was a metallic ring to his voice which was not encouraging.

Much to Pat's surprise, the Countess had also come to dinner, but she sat silent at the head of the table, her face a sickly white, her eyes half closed. And yet in spite of that, Pat thought, with a warm rush of enthusiasm, that Helen Dei Sari was a magnificently beautiful woman. Ill, her eyes dulled, she still held herself like a queen. Blood did tell, Pat reflected and she wondered who Helen Dei Sari had been before she married.

It puzzled her, however, that Dei Sari should have let his wife come to the table when she was so obviously suffering.

"She wanted to dine with us," the Count murmured suddenly, as though guessing Pat's thoughts, "and I felt it would keep her quieter to let her have her own way."

Pat nodded, but it seemed strange to her that a woman so obviously ill and — understanding suddenly the dull eyes—so obviously drugged, should have had the energy to assert herself in any matter. It seemed more probable that the Count had had some personal reason for her presence, although Pat couldn't imagine what that reason could be. What difference did it make whether the Countess dined with them or not?

"MISS BURKE . . ." The words came with great difficulty as though the Countess found it hard to move her tongue. "Peter—is—all—right?"

"Very well, Countess," Pat answered quickly and reassuringly.

"Ah—thank you . . . "

Pat wondered what on earth was bothering the poor woman. What jumbled thoughts were behind that lovely white forehead?

"She has moments of fondness for Peter," the Count remarked in an undertone to Pat.

"Well, naturally!" Pat retorted. "She is his mother."

Dei Sari smiled as he might smile at a stupid child, and Pat blushed.

"She also has moments of hate for him," he said quietly. "Is that natural to mothers?"

"No, no—of course not." Pat was flustered. "I didn't mean—"

"I understand."

"That's Father's idea of teasing," Sergio murmured with a smile, but Pat was surprised to see a flashing look of anger cross his face as he glanced at his father.

Did Sergio hate the Count? The question had been in the back of Pat's mind for some time. Now it recurred, more forcefully. The expression which she had caught on his face in that fleeting second was something to think about. Sergio had offered to help her. Was there a way in which she might take advantage of that offer? The main trouble was that Sergio hated Dirk and, no matter what excuse she might give for wanting to go to the village for an hour, he would be sure to suspect her of meeting Dirk. Suppose she asked him to accompany her, would she have a chance of slipping a note to someone to deliver to Dirk? She immediately dismissed this idea, however, as impractical.

ANXIOUS to be alone, she excused herself as early as she could after dinner and went to her room. For a long time she sat by the open window, watching the moon set, but the very beauty of the night saddened her, and she finally went to bed, discouraged and disheartened. There was no way out. She was as surely trapped as though she had been in prison.

How long she slept she did not know, but she awakened with a start, feeling that someone was in her room. More than that, someone was leaning over her bed and, as she tried to sit up, a firm hand touched her shoulder and a familiar voice whispered her name. If it had not been for the very material feel of that hand, she would have thought she was dreaming.

"Dirk!" she exclaimed incredulously.

A low chuckle answered her. "In person."

He struck a match and lighted the candle which stood on the little night table.

"I was afraid you would shout or something," he whispered, "so I was all ready to put a hand over your mouth."

Pat stared at him, too surprised to speak.

"Skeleton key," he explained nodding towards the door. "I was afraid your lock would be more complicated and that I would have to take the chance of knocking and awakening some one."

"But how did you get in the castle?" she asked, bewildered.

Dirk grinned. "The kitchen maid. I have a way with women."

"But this is terribly dangerous," she protested.

"No other way," he answered seriously. "Tell me quickly what has been going on."

Pat reached for her kimono on the bottom of the bed and slipped it over her shoulders. She was trembling from nervousness, but now that Dirk was here in person, she felt her courage returning.

As concisely as she could, she started to give him a complete account of everything she had seen, heard and done since her arrival in the castle, and had reached the scene which she had witnessed last night from the library when Dirk put up a warning hand and blew out the candle.

Someone was coming up the stairs!

WAR MOTHERS THIMBLE CLUB HAS SESSION

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Rutledge were host and hostess yesterday to members of the Thimble Club of the American War Mothers Thimble Club. The affair assembled a large number of guests and was known as a "layette party."

The home was beautifully decorated. At one of the tables, which was decorated in pink and blue, was a cradle, more than 60 years old. In this cradle were two kewpies, and these were awarded to the person who gave the best names for the dolls. Two large storks had packages of candies and good things to eat suspended from their bills.

Mrs. R. G. Lee assigned each person present to a three-minute talk on some subject, an assignment that drew much laughter.

Mrs. Alice Wiles, of the Red Cross gave an interesting talk on baby welfare work. She was presented with a number of layettes made by the ladies of the club. In addition, Mrs. Wiles gave the club a number of articles to be sewed for the Red Cross.

A delightful program was enjoyed during the afternoon. Mrs. Eloise Bloomquist gave a reading; Mrs. Ruth Thomas sang several selections; Mrs. Houston gave two readings; Mrs. Lee gave an interesting talk and Mrs. Obeda Summers presented Mrs. Anna Keaton, the president, with several pieces of fancy work.

A vote of thanks was extended to the host and hostess by the club. Mr. Rutledge was presented with a cigar holder.

It was announced that the next meeting will be held in the very near future.

Poderjay Taken To New York By Police Officers

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Police brought back from Europe today—after seven months of trying—the man they accuse of knowing what happened to Agnes Tufverson, whose strange disappearance is still a mystery.

Ivan Poderjay, adventurer and former Yugoslav army officer, who married the prosperous, 43-year-old woman lawyer here more than a year ago and then sailed away alone, came back in the brig of the steamship President Polk, guarded by Detective Jacob Weisenstein of New York police.

Technically, Poderjoy was returned to face trial for bigamy, charged with having a wife in Europe when he married Miss Tufverson.

Poderjay and Miss Tufverson were married at the Little Church Around the Corner, December 4, 1933.

Authorities in Vienna, where Poderjay was arrested, quoted him as admitting he received money from Miss Tufverson's bank account. Police believe he received more than $30,000 in cash and securities from her.

FORUM HEARS TALK AT MEET IN HOTEL HERE

Avery C. Moore, outstanding Democratic leader in this area, was speaker of the evening when the Women's Democratic Forum held its meeting last night at the Hotel Carquinez.

The speaker was introduced by Miss Emma Pearman, president of the Forum. Moore discussed Congress and the new social program.

It was announced during the business meeting that a public whist party will be held by the Forum in March. Mrs. Robert B. Hamilton will be in charge.

About 20 new members were welcomed to the club. At that time it was announced that the organization will be enlarged to include the entire county. At the present time there are members from Richmond, San Pablo, El Cerrito, Oakley, Walnut Creek, Danville, Pittsburg, Brentwood and other towns of the county.

Miss Pearman presided over the business meeting. A letter of thanks was received from the county central committee for a donation of $25 for campaign funds.

HOMESTEAD ENTERTAINS WITH DANCE

Richmond Homestead last night entertained with a dance at their clubrooms at 818 Macdonald avenue.

These old fashioned dances have always proved a big success and last night's dance was no exception to this rule. Music was furnished by a well known local orchestra.

Prior to the dance a short business meeting was held by the lodge with W. C. Kates in charge.

New Deal Mural

VICE LID WILL BE BLOWN OFF AT PITTSBURG

PITTSBURG, Jan. 29. "I'll have enough evidence in a few weeks of Pittsburg's underworld conditions to open your eyes."

This statement, made last night by Councilman Max Grabstein at another packed and stormy meeting of the Pittsburg council, bore promise today of some sensational charges.

The statement came in a revival of a long standing dispute between Grabstein and other members of the council over administration of police department affairs and was featured by Grabstein's promise of an expose and his declaration that he had been "stopped" by the council in his efforts to determine the identity of Pittsburg's "Al Capone."

The flareup came when Grabstein haled Police Chief Charles Scudero and Assistant Chief Charles Hamilton before the council and asked them if he, at the time he was police commissioner, had not given them orders to "clean up Black Diamond street."

The officers said that Grabstein had given such orders and that they had passed them on to their subordinates.

"I was stopped in trying to find Pittsburg's Al Capone by the council and you," Grabstein said in designating Mayor Hugh H. Donovan.

The mayor denied he had ever interfered with any movement against vice conditions.

Grabstein also brought up a $50 expense item for the police department that had been approved, he said, without his knowledge as police commissioner. Donovan told him that the expenditure had been approved because Grabstein was absent from the city and the fund was needed for immediate police work.

Grabstein several months ago was relieved as police commissioner after an inquiry into administration of police department affairs.

Will Rogers To Have Talk Soon With Kingfish

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 29.—(UP)—Will Rogers, noted humorist, rescued Mrs. J. S. Roussel, president of the women's division of the Square Deal Association, from police today, and told her he was "going to Washington to talk with Senator Long."

Rogers had invited Mrs. Roussel to his hotel to present her side of the present controversy. When she appeared, her road was blocked by policemen. She fled past one and slapped another, but she couldn't get by a third.

Thereupon she began battling. She screamed for Rogers. The humorist appeared, sized up the situation and demanded that the officers unhand her.

After an hour's conference Mrs. Roussel emerged with a happy smile on her face.

"Rogers says he is going to Washington to talk to Senator Long," she said, "and he is going to try to persuade him to give the people their just rights. I believe he will succeed."

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 29.—He's the embodiment of all the meek little men in the world, this Charlie Ruggles.

He's the original hen-pecked husband. He's the man H. T. Webster was thinking of when he created his cartoon character, "The Timid Soul."

Unconsciously, screen audiences like nothing better than to see Charlie get into dire difficulties. They enjoy his incoherent sputterings when an irate wife or browbeating boss takes him over the coals. And they cheer delightedly when the meek little man triumphs, as he always does.

Currently Charlie is working in "Ruggles of Red Gap," but he doesn't play the title role. Charles Laughton plays the famed English butler created by Harry Leon Wilson. And along with Laughton and Ruggles, Paramount assigned Mary Boland, Roland Young, Za Su Pitts and Leila Hyams to the cast.

In most of his recent pictures Ruggles was a hen-pecked hubby and Mary Boland the domineering wife. In "Ruggles of Red Gap," though, Charlie isn't so mild mannered. He wears a droopy "handlebar" mustache of 1907 vintage and chews tobacco.

Charlie says his eternal role of subservience to domestic will came about accidentally. When he came to the screen from the stage, he usually was cast as a dipsomaniac, and he hiccoughed his way through a dozen talkies. Then, for no apparent reason, he became henpecked.

"I suppose everyone enjoys seeing the insignificant and bulldozed little man come out on top," says Charlie. "Possibly there's a bit of 'timid soul' in all of us. Possibly many think, 'There but for the grace of God go I,' when they watch Charlie Ruggles go through his paces."

Charlie isn't at all timid off the screen. He is brisk and energetic, sort of like an insurance salesman. He keeps pretty much to himself, mixing little in Hollywood society and staying as often as he can at his ranch in nearby San Fernando Valley.

Kersey Scores Budget For All State Schools

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Governor Frank F. Merriam today met objections by Veirling Kersey, state superintendent of public instruction, to asserted reductions in the department's budget, with the statement that Kersey could have more money "if the Legislature thinks it is necessary and can find the money."

Kersey said a hardship would be worked on the school system under the present proposed budget, set at $786,650 as compard to $857,787 spent in 1933-35. He said it would be impossible to furnish adequate textbook supplies with the proposed sum.

KNOX ATTACKS NEW DEALERS FOR BIG DEBT

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 29.—(UP)—Hopeful members of the Republican party today celebrated the birthday of Kansas, loyal child of the G.O.P.

Formerly, Kansas celebrated its birthday almost alone. But this year Republican leaders from many states attended, eager to learn how Kansas Republicans were able to stay that way.

STUDY KANSAS

Three potential candidates for the Republican presidential nomination were there. They sought the formulae by which their Kansas brothers weathered the Roosevelt Democratic tide of '32 and again last year.

One of them was Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher and militant New Deal critic. Another was Patrick J. Hurley, handsome Oklahoman who was Hoover's secretary of war. A third was Kansas' young governor, Alf M. Landon.

SOUNDED CALL

Knox sounded the call for a Republican comeback. His speech featured the Kansas City Club banquet tonight which ended the birthday party.

"As a party we have been deloused," he said. "For nearly the first time, the party meets unvexed by the burden of support by the great selfish combinations which seek monopoly and the so-called leaders of finance who seek government advantage.

DESERTED RANKS

"They have, happily, deserted our ranks. En masse they have gone over to the Democratic party, where the pickings are good.

"We stand forth clean and the more worthy of trust. With the great traditions of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt to inspire us, with an unshaken loyalty to the fundamentals which those two great leaders gave our party, we shall go forward unafraid."

Knox said that the administration's vast spending program would run the public debt to $40,000,000,000 by the close of the next fiscal year, or twice as large as when Roosevelt became president.

SCORES EVILS

Knox criticised monopolies which, he said, now exist.

"This vicious, unsound principle found expression in the National Recovery Act and a little more than a year ago we were actually presented with the incredible spectacle of the Democratic party going into partnership with every big business combination in the country and granting them immunity to practice the very monopolistic principles which our laws forbade."

Daughter Of U. C. Official Divorced

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—Cruelty charges today won a divorce for Mrs. Virginia C. Metson, daughter of Joseph M. Cumming, University of California regent, from Wilfred G. Metson, son of W. H. Metson, millionaire San Francisco attorney.

Mrs. Metson told Superior Judge Thomas Graham that her husband had begun treating her with indifference shortly after the birth of their first child, Wilfred, Jr., who is now six, and had continued until their separation in November, 1933.

Undulant, or Fluctuating, Fever Often Confused With Other Ailments Due to Milk

I RECEIVE a number of letters from readers, describing an irregular long continued fever, which they do not understand and what their physicians have called by various names. To me, many of them suggest undulant fever. I cannot make a diagnosis at a distance, but I can suggest the possibility and advise as to the process to be gone through to reach a decision.

DR. CHRISMAN

The disease has only been recognized in the United States since 1926, and at the beginning closely resembles typhoid fever, malarial fever, tuberculosis and sometimes rheumatic fever.

It is not surprising that many physicians have not had it brought to their attention, and consequently do not suspect what the real trouble is. Since it has come into prominence and its irregular trend has become known, that explains many of the fever cases I have seen and could not understand at the time.

It was at first called malta fever because it has been prevalent on the Island of Malta for more than a hundred years. It was considered as a result of drinking raw goats' milk. For many years after its first diccovery in America, it was attributed entirely to goats' milk. Then it was discovered in cows' milk, but was consideerd a separate disease until in 1918 Alice Evans, a research worker in the laboratory of the Public Health Service, proved that the micrococcus melitensis from goats' milk and brucella abortus from cows was practically the same.

* * *

SINCE 1926 a total of 7,620 cases have been reported in the United States, and undoubtedly many thousands more have been either not recognized or not reported. It is the result of the use of raw cows' milk, from cows that are infected with the brucella abortus, which causes them to abort their calves, or from goats similarly affected.

It also appears in hogs and can be contracted by the handling of meat from animals so afflicted. The disease occurs most frequently in men, particularly in the country districts, and especially among young adults.

In the beginning it resembles typhoid or malaria. Usually for a week or two there is a feeling of lassitude, with general weakness and loss of strength. The patient feels that he is having slight chills and an evening fever. Sometimes there is a severe chill and high fever with severe sweating.

The next morning he may feel quite well, but in the evening the chill, fever and sweating return. Often when the thermometer shows a temperature of 103 or 104 degrees the patient does not feel that he is feverish, but he will be restless at night and unable to sleep. Even with high fever the mind remains clear, in that way differing from typhoid. The fever may persist for a week or two and then subside for a time and then recur as severely as at first, but more often it is continuous for one or two weeks to several months.

* * *

THE chief abdominal complaints are sick stomach and obstinate constipation. There may be general or local pain in the abdomen and when this is severe it may be confused with appendicitis, resulting in unnecessary operation.

The loss of weight is marked. There may be pains in the muscles and joints in various parts of the body. A positive diagnosis can be made after the first ten days by a laboratory examination of the blood.

Death resulting from undulant fever is very rare, and then only from general exhaustion or intercurrent disease. The principal treatment is prevention. The only logical method of prevention for this milk-borne disease is pasteurization of all milk: and protection of the skin while handling the fresh meat.

All milk should be boiled or pasteurized. In the home, milk can be pasteurized by placing the milk in a vessel and gradually heating to a temperature of 155 degrees F., stirring it all the time. Then immediately place it in a vessel of cold water and continue to stir it all the time till cool. It can also be pasteurized by heating to 143 to 145 degrees F. for thirty minutes and then rapidly cooling.

Guide to Charm

OIL TREATMENT INSURES SHINY, TRACTABLE HAIR

By JACQUELINE HUNT

WHETHER your hair is dry, oily, normal, straight, naturally curly or artificially waved, it cannot fail to respond to the hot oil shampoo. As you have been told many times, begin by a vigorous brushing to thoroughly arouse the circulation and to remove accumulations of dust, lint and dandruff from the scalp and hair.

Usually there is not much regularity about brushing and hot oil treatments. And the reason is, in most cases, that you do not want to spoil a good wave. Nevertheless the hair must have its regular time for exercising, stimulation and cleansing. If you have your hair waved in a beauty shop each week, why not set aside the day before for a hot oil treatment and shampoo?

MISS HUNT

Brushing should be a part of your daily beauty routine if you want to keep your scalp healthy and your hair soft and lustrous.

When you have finished the brushing that precedes the hot oil treatment, exercise the neck and shoulder muscles by rotating the head. Do this by slowly dropping the head forward on the chest then as far to the right as possible, back to the front and far to the left. Repeat several times, then massage the scalp firmly from the temples to the back of the neck until the scalp tingles. You are now ready for the oil.

Warm plain olive oil, odorless castor oil or a specially compounded oil until it is as hot as oyu cand bear without discomfort. Part the hair in sections, dip a pad of cotton into the warm oil and go over the head until the scalp is thoroughly saturated. Any remaining oil can be worked down the length of the strands. Massage for a minute, then wrap the head in a hot towel.

Dip the towel in very hot water, wring out and wind about the head. At the same time put another towel into the hot water so it will be ready to replace the one in use, as soon as it cools. The moist heat helps the scalp and the shafts of hair to actually absorb the oil. After fifteen minutes, rinse the surplus oil from the hair with hot water and a hand spray, then shampoo thoroughly.

The ideal soap for the shampoo is one that lathers easily and freely. Make a soap jelly or liquid by melting shaved castile or toilet soap. It will take about three good sudsings to wash away every trace of grime and free oil from your hair and scalp.

Rinse thoroughly until every trace of soap is gone. A hand spray is useful for rinsing the hair since the water is drected through the hair and against the scalp with some force to float away stray flecks of soap. Into the final rinse water goes strained lemon juice or vinegar to make your hair glossy.

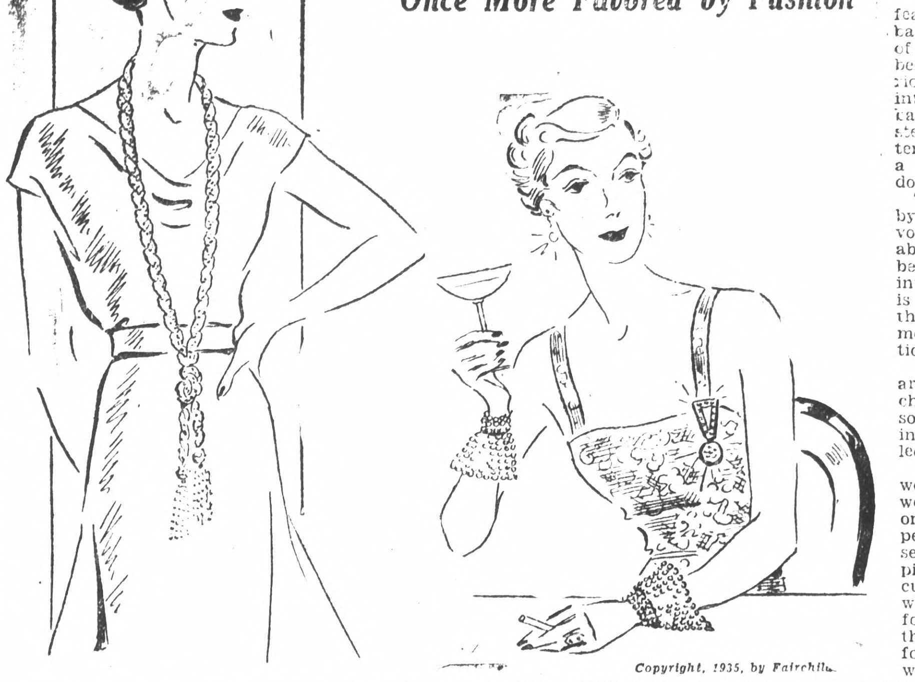
Shirtwaist Frocks Lead Way At Resorts, With Trend to Shirred Fulness At Back

Pearls — of the Novelty Type — Once More Favored by Fashion



Copyright, 1935, by Fairchild

By IRENE VAIL

New York—Just by way of variety, I am going to give you some sundry reports on current resort fashions, for, after all, they are the best sort of guidance.

The tendency is growing to feature shirred fulness at the back of shirtwaist frocks instead of pleats, the fulness introduced below shoulder yokes and in various other ways. One treatment introduces this type of fulness at back at top of the shoulders instead of below the yoke, and extending it into the sleeve in such a way as to provide extra freedom.

The slashed back is not new by any means, but widely favored. Sometimes it is adjustable, so that a suntan back can be opened up. But its newest interpretation which has taken is in shirtwaist styled frocks, the slash giving the freedom of motion usually supplied by action pleats or fulness.

Small dots in cotton flannel are much newer looking than checks, the latter having been so widely featured a year ago in the resort and summer collections.

Sketched today is proof that women are taking to buying and wearing pearls of novelty aspect once more. A long rope of seed pearls finished with pearl tassels was an effective jewelry piece seen recently. Two pearl cuff bracelets with tight fitting wrist bands provided interest for a red lace frock and a further accent was the diamond fob and diamond studded watch worn on one shoulder strap.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I am a young man who would like some advice on how to dress my hair and encourage waves. I have been using petroleum jelly, but I find that this is too greasy and messy to handle. Please tell me some dressing that will keep my hair in place without harming it in any way. What suits would be becoming to me? I am 5 ft. 9 in. in height and slender. What colors would make me look taller? —Edward."

There are numerous hair lotions that will encourage the wave and act as a dressing for the hair. If you would like to have names, you will have to send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply, since I cannot give trade names through this column. As for suits, those with a tiny pin stripe or simple vertical pattern will make you look taller. Avoid checks or rough-looking tweeds and get smooth-finished materials. You do not state your coloring, but in general dark grays and blues are most conservative and apt to be more slenderizing.

QUESTION: "Please tell me where I can get the toilet lanoline and cocoa butter mentoned in a recent column on making creams at home. —J. S."

Toilet lanoline, which is delicately perfumed and refined, comes in tubes and is sold in most good drugstores. The cocoa butter comes in small bars or cakes something like soap. It can also be purchased in drugstores. If you local store doesn't carry these preparations, I am sure the manager will be glad to order them for you—or you might try a mail order catalogue.

Dot of Cream

Charles Franklin Kettering, Vice-President of General Motors, Thinks Machine Age Will Aid Men

A GREAT many persons in the world blame the depression on machines, the theory being that with machines to do so much work so quickly men are thrown from their jobs. This theory is attacked most energetically by Charles Franklin Kettering, who just the other day was found to own $15,000,000 worth of General Motors stock. Mr. Kettering declares machines will not displace men, but rather will so enrch their lives and stimulate industrial activity that there will be room for all.

This sounds idealistic, but the automobile tycoon is a practical man. When he went to the country school near Loudonville, Ohio, his teacher of arithmetic gave all the boys a square board, told them the area, and made them whittle out the formula for square root. The experience of doing such practical work before arriving at the formula has affected Kettering's whole life, so much so that in some quarters he is called "the monkey wrench scientist."

From the country school he went to Ohio State University, then taught school, and afterward worked for the Star Telephone Company at Ashland, Ohio. All this time, he was experimenting with the idea of a better ignition system for automobiles. He had the back room of "Doc" Robinson's drug store in a perfect mess, but always he was gaining ground.

For some time he worked for the National Cash Register Company, and then helped organize the Delco Company, his part being the development of an efficient lighting, starting and ignition system for autos. The company grew to great proportions, and Kettering's money was made.

He is now president and general manager of General Motors Research Corporation and vice-president of General Motors.

Besides his scientific accomplishments, Mr. Kettering has either professional or amateur standing in such fields as philosophy, oratory, education, aviation and preaching.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today

Unusual Dessert Saves Day When Main Course Is Plain

By JUDITH WILSON

THERE ARE numerous occasions when a tricky dessert saves the day. Such a dessert gives glamor to an otherwise plain meal, and makes it good enough for unexpected guests. A baked or jellied dessert keeps well and will make your afternoon tea table delightfully inviting. We hope that you will try all of the dainty recipes that follow:

Coconut Chews

Cream one-half cup shortening together with one-half cup brown sugar until fluffy and then work in one cup flour. Pat the mixture into a baking pan 8 by 13 inches. Bake for ten minutes in a moderate oven, then remove and pour over the top this mixture: Beat two eggs and blend in one cup brown sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, one cup broken walnuts, three tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt and one and one-half cups shredded coconut. Return to the oven and bake for twenty minutes longer. Cut into slender fingers.

Lemon Bavarian Cream

Prepare two packages lemon gelatin according to the manufacturer's directions. When partly set, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs and one-half cup cream whipped until very stiff. Turn into a ring mold rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm. Unmold onto a cake plate and fill the center with stewed apricots that have been pressed through a seive, and the puree sweetened and cooked over a low flame until thick. Garnish with blanched almonds or brazil nuts and small buds of sweetened whipped cream. This is a lovely but inexpensive company dessert

Fruit Fritters with Wine Sauce

Dip whole pieces of drained canned fruit into a slightly sweetened fritter batter and fry in deep fat, or chop the fruit, add to the batter and drop by tablespoons into hot fat. When golden brown, drain on unglazed paper and serve while hot with this sauce: Separate the whites of two eggs and beat the latter slightly. Mix one-half cup sugar, one-half tablespoon cornstarch, one-fourth teaspoon salt, the rind and juice one-half lemon, the egg yolks and one cup brandy or sherry. Cook in a double boiler until the sauce is slightly thickened. Stir constantly. Remove from the fire and add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Serve warm.

Norwegian Prune Pudding

Cover one-half pound prunes with some water and simmer until tender. Drain, reserving one cup of the juice Remove the pits and cut the prunes in pieces. Combine one-half cup sugar, three tablespoons cornstarch, one-fourth teaspoon cinnamon in a double boiler. Add one cup evaporated milk, one cup water and the prune juice and cook until thickened. Cover and cook for twenty-five minutes, stirring occasionally. Add the prunes, mix well and turn into a mold. Chill. Serve garnished with whipped cream. This makes enough for six.

Cranberry-Banana Cake

Melt one and one-half cups brown sugar with a tablespoon butter in a heavy frying pan. Remove from the fire. Place three split bananas on the sugar and fill the spaces with washed and dried cranberries. Pour over this cake batter: Cream together one-fourth cup shortening, one-half cup sugar and two eggs, beating well. Sift one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Add alternately with one-fourth cup evaporated milk. Add one-half teaspoon vanilla. Pour over the fruit and bake till well-browned, about twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Invert on a plate and serve warm with whipped cream.

MODES AND MANNERS

QUESTION: "There is a newborn baby in the family. The father's name is John, the grandfather's Douglas. The father wishes to name his son for his father. If we do this would it be correct to call him Douglas, Junior? Thanking you in advance for an early reply through your column. —A. B. W."

ANSWER: It is correct to name this child Douglas, Junior. Junior following a name means the son or grandson of a man of the same name.

* * *

QUESTION: "May asparagus be eaten with the fingers? —V. C."

ANSWER: The fork should be used.

* * *

ANSWER: Ordinarily the left side of the plate is for forks only, but when the fork is the only piece of silver used it may be placed at the right.

QUESTION: "Is it correct to say, 'Mr. Smith, Mr. Jones,' when introducing two men to each other?—C.C."

ANSWER: Quite, when there is no difference in age or title. When there is a difference, however, the younger man should be introduced to the older one or to the one whose title or achievements entitle him to such dignified consideration. Then one says, "Dr. Jones, may I present Mr. Smith?" "Mr. Smith, Mr. Jones" is a contraction for "Mr. Smith, this is Mr. Jones." Either form may be used.

You and Your Child

DEMANDING AID FROM CHILDREN NOT BIT UNFAIR

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

ALVIN and Joan are not always as thoughtful of their mother as they could be. Their mother, on the other hand, is determined to keep them mindful of her. "Children are forgetful," she says, "and I mean to teach my own that consideration is my due. I respect their interests and they must learn to respect mine."

Among her friends and among neighbors whose children are contemporaries of her own, this mother has a reputation for being strict, far too strict. For instance, if she is reading or has a visitor or a headache, she expects the children to be quiet. If they are not she sees that they are punished later on or deprived of some privilege.

Likewise, when this mother needs assistance she expects her children to be helpful. She says, "Look here, you will have to help me. Your grandmother is ill and needs attention and some ladies are coming in for bridge this afternoon. It is too late now to call it off. I'm so rushed I don't know where I'm at." And she won't take "no" for an answer. She takes the attitude, "You must not fail me; when you need me I always stand by you."

MRS. GOWARD

She is fair and busness-like, and as a rule the children rise to the occasion. Still, outsiders shake their heads disapprovingly. Some even have the courage to broach the subject to her as follows: "Don't you think you are expecting a little too much of them? I couldn't be as hard with my children. Take it from me, your children may obey you now, but they won't love you for it later."

At such times this mother usually answers: "That's where I believe you are wrong. My children like the way I treat them—or maybe they are used to it by now. Children do not judge us as good or bad. They have no basis for comparison. They merely react to us as they believe they are supposed to. By doting on them continuously and never asking them to give up anything on your behalf you train them to expect you to do all the giving. Then in your old age, like many another parent before you, you no doubt will wonder how they can be so thoughtless after all you have done for them!"

Short Cuts

Certain grocers are offering a new product, but it is really a very old idea. It consists of the best cinnamon and fine grained sugar mixed in the exact proportions to give the best result for flavoring, packed in a handy round can with a shaker top. One wonders why no one thought of doing this before. A sprinkling of cinnamon and sugar adds zest to so many dishes.

* * *

There are cotton socks for highball glasses. These are intended to absorb the water that condenses on the outside when an iced drink is inside. These socks slip over the lower half of the glass and partly cover the base. And if you are serving a highball, there is much to be said in their favor as an antiskid. Some guests "can't take it."

* * *

If the homemaker took the trouble to consult the men folk about dinner, nine out of ten would probably name steak every time. For that slightly charred, out-doors-y flavor, try this: Sprinkle the steak with paprika five or so minutes before it is ready to be removed from the broiler after serving. Another way to a man's heart is with planked steak

Coloring the Rice

Rice may be served in all the colors of the rainbow in order to harmonize with other foods, the table or certain room decorations, simply by boiling in colored water.

MODERN WOMEN

By C. N. CHRISMAN M.D.

Has the Younger Set Given Up Trying to Shock? — College Records Indicate They Have

THE heartening announcement from seven leading women's colleges in the East alone that even during the lean years great progress has been made is one of the bright bits in the news of the day. The seven colleges reporting great gain in attendance and in academic advancement are Barnard, Bryn Mawr, Mount Holyoke, Radcliffe, Smith, Vassar and Wellesley.

MRS. MARTIN

In the seven colleges the number of students undertaking honors work has been maintained, in some instances increased, during the past five years. This year Mount Holyoke, as an example, has its largest number of registrants for the honors degree. Indeed, it is possible that an increase in the number of honor students may be traced to the current emergency.

Young women have become acutely conscious of the advantages of specialized training and have become more and more determined to fit themselves for a specific line of work.

Instead of being discouraged by the fact that there have been vast number of college women forced to work behind counters or at other occupations which hardly seemed to require many years of study, other young women have gone bravely on fitting themselves for whatever the changing world may bring.

* * *

THEY have sat under lecturers prominent and well-informed in national and world affairs in order to try for a better understanding of social and economic problems.

A characteristic sign of the times is a quickened zest for knowledge and a fuller appreciation of the privileges of college life. Obviously, it is only the serious-minded girl who has been willing to make the necessary sacrifices to remain in college when her financial support was withdrawn.

Every cooperation has been given students to make it possible for them to work their way through college.

Greatly increased scholarship aid was not enough to meet the emergency. Other means of helping the needy student to help herself, which, in most cases, she was almost painfully eager to do, had to be devised. At Radcliffe a domestic science teacher trained a group of girls in formal waitress service which has enabled some of them to earn from $100 to $175 a year. Again a six weeks' course in shorthand and typing, offered through cooperation with the Katharine Gibbs School, equips Radcliffe students to fill calls for part-time secretarial work.

* * *

IN THE country colleges, however, few such opportunities are to be found. They have therefore created self-helf opportunities by increasing the number of cooperative houses in which students undertake light housekeeping duties in return for a reduction in fees.

Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, pays tribute to the depression graduate by saying "a more cheerful, resolute, keener student it would be hard to discover." All of which speaks very well for the future of America. If the old theory applies that no nation can be greater than its women, things look rather bright for the U. S. A., in spite of the considerable criticism leveled at our younger generation.

It does appear from first and second hand evidence that our young people have tired of attempting to shock a shock-proof generation and have abandoned the enthusiastic sowing of what they regard as their "wild oats." They are playing with the idea of the revival of ladylike manners, as well as ladylike modes.

The statement may be open to differences of opinions, but there is a feeling that the younger set has reformed!

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

ROOSEVELT SUFFERS A NEW DEFEAT

grinned. Robinson squirmed in his chair. He was on his feet as soon as Bulow had concluded to level a biting attack upon propagandists, such as the Rev. Father Charles Coughlin, radio priest.

He accused the priest of making "inflammatory remarks" not based upon fact. He denounced Coughlin and others who had urged the people to wire Senators demanding that they vote against the court.

SCORE ACTION

Flushed and angry, Robinson snapped at Senator Thomas D. Schall, Republican, Minnesota, when he sought to bring the name of President Roosevelt's wife into the acrimonious debate. Mrs. Roosevelt urged American adherence to the court. Schall sought to obtain agreement from Robinson that Mrs. Roosevelt's plea had counteracted one made by Coughlin.

"I'm not going to yield to the Senator from Minnesota to make one of his characteristic attacks upon President Roosevelt and his family," Robinson shouted.

FINAL VOTE

The final vote came in an atmosphere not unlike that which surrounded the dramatic battle by a little group of Senate irreconcilables 15 years ago which kept this country out of the League of Nations.

Fighting every inch of the way were two leaders of this small band—Senator Johnson, and Senator Borah. There were the crowded galleries which dared the displeasure of the stern Vice President John N. Garner and applauded the brilliant speeches of American isolationism. There were the passionate outbursts against European political intrigue and sharp warnings that America had nothing to gain and everything to lose by becoming involved in quarrels 3000 miles away.

HUEY IN FIGHT

Striding across the picture was one, however, who was young when the famous league battle was fought—Senator Huey P. Long, Democrat, Louisiana. The Louisiana "Kingfish" loves a battle and he was in this one today every minute. He roved about the chamber trying to get votes against the project. He roared his denunciation of European war debtors and—every amendment he offered was defeated.

Behind the scenes, leaders of the warring factions worked last night holding their lines together and maneuvering for position. The strategy was disclosed today when Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat Utah, proponent of the court, rose to offer an amendment which had been rejected previously by the Foreign Relations Committee.

NEW PLAN

It was offered in the committee by Senator Johnson and involved senate approval of treaties in which problems in dispute between contracting nations should be referred to the court. Majority leader Joseph T. Robinson opposed the reservation in the committee but today accepted it from the floor.

His reversal brought the quick charge by Johnson that the administration was attempting thru this zero hour strategy to win the few votes necessary to assure victory. Robinson did not deny this assertion but Thomas sought to brush it aside as "too complimentary."

Charging that Thomas' reservation was, in effect, similar to the one by Senator Norris rejected yesterday, Johnson shouted:

"Who is going to be fooled by this sort of stuff at this time?"

"Trick!"

LEAGUE SHOCKED

GENEVA, Jan. 29. —(UP)— League of Nations officials were shocked tonight by the U. S. Senate's rejection of adherence to the World Court.

They had believed approval assured and refused steadfastly to comment for several days past on the possibility of the senate voting adherence, fearing any comment would be misinterpreted in Washington.

viction and the passing of sentence. After a talk with the foreman of the jury, Arthur Fisher of Richmond, Judge Thomas D. Johnston imposed a sentence of six months in the county jail and Hightman forthwith began serving it.

WINS FIRST CASE

Incidentally it was the new district attorney's first criminal trial and whether it is unusual or not, it is a fact that he chalked up a victory. He was assisted in the prosecution by his deputy, Harold Jacoby of El Cerrito, Will S. Robensen and Ross T. Corey of Richmond ably represented the defendant.

BROTHER ON TRIAL TODAY

Arising out of the same case are charges against Henry Hightman and Stella Kirk of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. This case is scheduled to come to trial today. From the following panel the jury will be selected, provided the defendants do not change their plea of not guilty:

POLICE QUIZ SUSPECTS IN GIRL MURDER

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29 — UP— Momentarily balked, then encouraged by the host of clues uncovered in investigation of the murder of Kathleen Robinson, 26, police tonight turned to scientific rechecks of all possible evidence in the case.

Finger-prints found on articles in Miss Robinson's apartment, the rifling of guns taken in connection with the investigation, a check of tire marks found near the body, and ownership of four keys to the girl's apartment were carefully reviewed.

Police Chief Thomas Burke, after Florencio Alcalde, an admirer of Miss Robinson, had been questioned three hours today said he was inclined to believe the 22 year old youth's story that he knew nothing of the slaying.

Burke said that "it looks as though a third man, whose identity we do not know was responsible for the crime." He added, however, that Alcalde would continue to be held for investigation in the case, and that Bernard J. Pease, 28, another suitor of the girl, would be requestioned. Pease was released after several hours' questioning.

The girl's body was found stretched on a sidewalk two blocks from her San Mateo home, a bullet wound in her head. One hand still clutched a half-smoked cigarette. She was dressed in evening clothes, apparently for a dancing engagement Alcalde said he had with her for Saturday evening. Her slayer apparently had driven close to the sidewalk, had shot her as she walked down the street, then swerved quickly away.

A motorist, Bert Feasy, told police that he had seen a man crouching near the spot where the body was found. He could supply only a meagre description of the man.

Small Fine Is Levied On Man Who Shot Chum

MARTINEZ, Jan. 29.— Arrested on January 15 in Crockett following a fracas in which John Pita, 34, was shot in the right foot by a pistol bullet, Manuel Cunha, 34, also known as Manuel Perry late yesterday was allowed his freedom after he paid a fine of $10 on a reduced charge of battery.

Cunha had originally been charged with assault with a deadly weapon, but yesterday the charge was reduced by the district attorney's office to battery and Cunha was taken before Justice of the Peace Ray L. Standish of Crockett where he was given his choice of paying a fine of $10 or serving 10 days in jail.

According to the original charge Cunha was arrested after he and Pita engaged in an argument over payment of rent for a cabin in Crockett they occupied. Perry was alleged to have taken a pistol from under the pillow of his bed. A scuffle followed during which Pita was wounded in the foot.

HAUPTMANN STORY AGAIN HIT BY STATE

Each passing hour of testimony makes Fisch grow larger in importance in this case. The State has brought to the witness chair a living link of witnesses, people who can talk and identify Hauptmann and tell about hearing his voice across a cemetery wall on a spring evening in 1932.

CRACK IS FOUND

But always events swing back to Fisch, and always there is that gap that people leave when they die. Fisch is the crack in the State's wall of evidence through which Hauptmann may stride to freedom.

Knowing that, Wilentz tried to put the ghost of the skinny, black haired little Fisch on the witness stand today and have him hurl back at Hauptmann some of the innuendo that the defense has cast on the man who has been almost a year now in his grave outside Leipzig, Germany.

MONEY PAID

Hauptmann wanted to say that the reason he played the stock market so heavily after April, 1932—when the Lindbergh ransom was paid—was because Fisch gave him money to do it with. Wilentz was trying to make him admit that Fisch never gave him $15,000; that Hauptmann was using $50,000 of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's money in his stock deals.

One night Fisch called at the Hauptmann home. He said he was gravely ill and that he was about to leave for Germany. With his friend Bruno Richard Hauptmann he wanted to leave three things. Hauptmann said they were two satchels and a shoe box.

FOUND RANSOM

Months later, Hauptmann said, the shoe box burst open and there was $14,600 of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom paid to the kidnaper of his son.

Hauptmann began spending that money—"12 or 15 bills of it", is the way he put it today. Word came that Fisch had died, so on May 4, 1934, Hauptmann sat down and wrote a letter to Fisch's family. It was read in court today, translated from the German by George N. Priest, professor of Germanic languages at Princeton University.

"A week ago," it started, "I received the sad information of the death of your brother and my best friend. On the 14th of November, 1933, I took $2000 out of stocks and gave it to Isidor. I gave him $5500 from a private banking account. Isidor owes a Mrs. Hille $3500 since 1932. Isidor loaned a friend $2000 for a delicatessen."

TELLS OF DEBT

The letter ran on listing item after item, and Hauptmann ended it by telling the Fisch family that he had put $12,000 of his own money into his partnership with Isidor.

"Now, Mr. Defendant," Wilentz said, "did you put $12,000 into this partnership?"

"No, it was $9500.

TELLS OF LIE

"That wasn't true then, when you wrote to Fisch's brother that you put up $12,000?"

"No, it was $9500."

"When you wrote that you took this money out of your private bank, is that true?"

"No, the part about the private bank was not true."

MAKE COMPARISON

Wilentz left a picture of Hauptmann living a life of luxury, riding in an automobile, not working at his trade. And a picture of Fisch living a weary existence in a furnished room, trying to earn bread and shelter in the fur business.

Edward J. Reilly of defense counsel had scant time today, after Wilentz had completed cross examination, to patch up the holes that the attorney general ripped in Hauptmann's story. That will come tomorrow.

Another Ruling Made By Board On Rum Selling

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 29.—(UP)— Pointing out that sale of liquor was not the principal business of such places, the State Board of Equalization today ruled that "on sale" liquor establishments may not advertise the sale of wines or hard liquor in front of their place of business.

Ray L. Riley, board chairman, explained that the ruling was made to halt "the advertising of saloons."

The ruling does not apply either to "off sale" establishments, where the liquor is sold for consumption off the premises, nor to beer parlors where beer may be served without meals.

The President's Ball

TIME: 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, January 30th.

PLACE: Memorial Hall.

A year ago the first President's ball was held in Richmond in conjunction with cities large and small in all parts of the country, and with the cooperation of all local organizations.

That ball was an outstanding success and resulted in a substantial sum being raised for the worthy cause in which President Roosevelt is deeply interested

Now comes the second ball, to be held at Memorial Park on the evening of January 30th, and with the same representative group of organizations participating to make it a success.

There is every reason to believe it WILL be a success-greater than the first one, because Richmond people know that the cause is important and that an enjoyable evening is in prospect for all who attend.

The Chamber of Commerce has taken an active interest in the ball and will send a large delegation.

The Chamber urges the public to attand.
